#28 Understanding Climate Change and Its Impacts: The Role of the IPCC
A Harvard University Center for the Environment Distinguished Environmental Lecture. Dr. Rajendra K. Pachauri Chairman, Intergovernmental Panel on Climate Change; Director-General, Tata Energy Research Institute. The talk will cover some of the major findings of the IPCC Third Assessment Report and look at those areas that require great emphasis to increase the policy relevance of the work of the IPCC. Some concepts would be put forward on how knowledge gaps could be filled up to ensure greater emphasis on regional assessments and socio economic impacts in different parts of the world. Some explanation will be provided of the IPCC process and the manner in which the body functions to meet the challenges it is facing. Some preliminary ideas will be presented in relation to the Fourth Assessment Report of the IPCC. Dr. R. K. Pachauri is an Indian national and has wide-ranging expertise in the critical facets of sustainable development. On April 20, 2002 Dr. Pachauri was elected Chairman of the Intergovernmental Panel on Climate Change, which he served as Vice-Chair from October 1997 to April 2002. He is the first developing-country expert to head this global body and will do so for six years. Time: 5 p.m. - 6:30 p.m., Location: Harvard University, Science Center, Hall B, 1 Oxford Street, Cambridge, MA. For more information contact: 617-495-8883, Adam Geremia or email: adamGeremia@harvard.edu.
